An excellent comedy with a fabulous cast

Willy Clark (Piotr Fronczewski) and Al Lewis (Krzysztof Kowalewski) for many years were a famous vaudevillian team. Their hilarious sketches and comedy scenes made several generations of spectators laugh dearly. However, popularity and fame are gone. At loggerheads and bearing mutual grudges for many years the duo do not appear on stage anymore and do not stay in touch. Until a tempting offer appears to make big money and become popular again.

The Sunshine Boys, a play by brilliant playwright Neil Simon, is a first-rate comedy, which with humour, irony and generosity speaks about life, its petty problems, shames and falls. Since 1972, when it was written, the play has received many prestigious theatrical awards and has also seen some television adaptations.

For the first time solo in Poland

Concert of a tenor giant

If God could sing, He would sound a lot like Andrea Bocelli – these words by Celine Dion perfectly describe the talent of one of the best known soloists of all times. His voice, sometimes melancholic, other times powerful and dignified, is unrivalled in expression, with its timbre being unique as a signature. More than 20 years of international career, 80 million albums sold and many prestigious awards received make the Italian tenor a walking legend.

In August the artist is going to perform in Kraków, accompanied by a choir and orchestra. It is worth adding that Bocelli gives just over ten solo concerts in a year, hence his live performance is always a great treat for music connoisseurs.
